

Product Cancellation Notification

After carefully considering its past and acknowledging the requirements of the future, including the upcoming changes to DOE's energy efficiency standards for its product category, this notice serves as formal notification that the AeroPak product line is being discontinued effective immediately. AeroSys is no longer quoting the product for sale and will be working with customers to cancel the orders that are currently in house.

AeroSys will continue to provide warranty support as best it can for products in the field that are still covered by the company's and suppliers' warranties.

AeroSys appreciates and values our working relationship. While we regret any inconvenience this announcement may cause, we are eager to provide you with other AeroSys through-the-wall products. Please contact John Hamsher, Sales Manager, if you have additional questions
